

Master of Education: Diverse and Equitable Instruction

Creating Inclusive Learning Communities (DEI)

Curry College brings you closer to your goals

Curry's Diverse and Equitable Instruction concentration meets a well-recognized need in educational settings and related fields. Professionals in public and private education, human resources, training, youth services, and non-profit may be interested in pursuing this master's degree to further their career or bolster their professional development and understanding in the DEI space.

Fully Online Schedule

Our Fully Online Schedule means you can worry less about commuting to class. Virtually attend one class per week with synchronous meetings. Benefit from the support Curry is known for in a format that's convenient for you.

Get Closer with Curry – M.Ed. in DEI Curriculum

All classes are taught in a fully online format and meet synchronously one night per week. The actual schedule may vary based on holidays and other scheduling details.

YEAR ONE

Fall Semester

- Human Development, Diversity, and Learning
- Culturally Responsive Educational Practices

Spring Semester

- Neurodiversity and Neuroeducational Assessments
- Inclusive Literacy and Communication Models

Summer Semester

- Fundamentals of Social-Emotional Learning (SEL)
- Diverse Perspectives in Mathematics

YEAR TWO

Fall Semester

- Equity, Ethics, and Educational Law
- Social Justice and Educational Advocacy

Spring Semester

- Educational Research
- Thesis Advising (1 credit)
- Capstone Seminar Thesis

The Master of Education (M.Ed.) in Diverse and Equitable Instruction is a 31-credit program; all courses, aside from Thesis Advising, are 8 weeks. Unless noted, all classes are three credits. Schedule is subject to change.

Closer Than You Think – Admission Requirements

- An earned bachelor's degree from an accredited institution
- A statement on your vision and contributions to diverse, equitable, and inclusive work in the field
- An interview with the Director of Graduate Studies

Closer to Your Budget

We proudly offer fixed tuition, with no tuition increase as long as you remain enrolled with your original cohort group. The Curry M.Ed. in Diverse and Equitable Instruction program also charges no additional course fees.

The fixed tuition is $17,267
($557 per credit x 31 credits).

Alumni receive a 20% discount.

Closer to Your Career – Take the Next Steps

Application Requirements

Refer to our website for all application requirements and deadlines.

Application Deadlines

Rolling admissions with opportunity to start every 8 weeks.

Apply at go.curry.edu/dei